MARKET REVIEW & OUTLOOK

The All-Share Index (ASI) closed the year in the green, gaining 5.56% and it still maintained strong year-to-date returns of 37.65%.

Narrowing down to the Consumer Goods Sector, we saw a maintained recovery within the Consumer Goods sector. The index gained 8.49% month-on-month in December and 54.44% YTD. We saw large cap BUAFOODS gain 5.09% in the period and strong green closes across INTBREW (+38.75%), UNILEVER (+23.64%), and NESTLE (2.94%) which countered the losses in other stocks within the index. We note the delisting of FLOURMILLS during the month. The exit was followed by a court-ordered meeting in November 2024, where minority shareholders approved Excelsior Shipping's acquisition of all minority shares, granting it full ownership and enabling the company's transition to private ownership.

Looking ahead, given the moderate upward trend in the final month of the year, the sector is poised for a positive start to 2025. However, we anticipate potential fluctuations in performance across the sector as investors begin to take position ahead of FY earnings result. We note the weak YTD performance across a number of the securities have provided attractive entry points for bargain hunters, however we do not expect sizable investor interest in this more vulnerable sector in the near term.
